Safe Country of Origin concept - Bangladesh

February 2025

The below factsheet on Bangladesh was produced in early 2025 by the European Union Agency for Asylum (EUAA) in accordance with article 12(2) of its founding Regulation (EU) 2021/2023, and in response to a request from the European Commission (Directorate-General for Migration and Home Affairs - DG HOME) to support its work on the designation of safe countries of origin at Union level.

This factsheet was peer-reviewed by a range of partners, including the DG HOME (international unit), the Directorate-General for International Partnerships (DG INTPA) and the European External Action Service. The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) also provided valuable input into this process. This factsheet was drafted in accordance with the EUAA COI Methodology, which emphasises the use of diverse sources to ensure factual, balanced and reliable information.

While this factsheet was structured around the defining criteria of a safe country of origin as stipulated in the Asylum Procedure Regulation (EU) 2024/1348, the EUAA (and its partners) played no part in assessing whether such criteria were met for Bangladesh to be designated as a safe country of origin at Union level. That assessment was performed entirely by the European Commission and was based on a range of relevant and available sources of information.

Legal and political situation – overview

System of government and political situation

Bangladesh is a parliamentary republic governed by the 1972 constitution.¹ The constitution prescribes the separation of powers between the executive and judiciary.² The parliament (Jatiya Sangsad) holds the legislative power, and its 350 members are elected in direct elections for five-year mandates.³ The parliament elects the president to serve as the head of state for a five-year term.⁴ While the president's role is mainly ceremonial, it includes appointing the prime minister⁵ who exercises executive power.⁶ Under the lead of the former prime minister Sheikh Hasina, who was in power from 2009–2024,⁷ Bangladesh experienced democratic backsliding and an increasingly authoritarian rule.⁸ According to Bertelsmann Stiftung, the situation reached a point where 'Bangladesh transformed into an authoritarian regime with a democratic façade'.⁹

Hasina and her government were ousted from power following nation-wide mass protests in July and early August 2024,¹⁰ sparked by the reinstatement of a quota system for civil service jobs.¹¹ The protests turned violent by mid-July 2024, when protest groups and police clashed.¹² 'Human rights violations' were reported,¹³ and over 1 000 people are estimated to have been killed with 'many thousands injured' due to excessive use of force by the security forces.¹⁴ On 5 August 2024, Hasina fled the country,¹⁵ and the parliament was dissolved.¹⁶

A care-taker government, led by the Nobel Peace Prize laureate Muhammad Yunus, was installed on 8 August 2024.¹⁷ The interim government's primary task is to organise new elections¹⁸ which are foreseen to take place in late 2025 or early 2026, although it may be delayed due to the need of extensive reforms to restore democratic institutions.¹⁹

A total of 10 reform commissions have been formed,²⁰ tasked with bringing forward proposals on reforming the constitution, police, judiciary, the election commission, public administration and to combat corruption.²¹ Four of the commissions, on the constitution, police, elections, and anti-corruption, reported back to Yunus on 15 January 2025, suggesting, inter alia, introducing term limits on the prime minister, amending the constitution,²² forming a National Constitutional Council to balance the power of top positions, establishing an ombudsman, establishing an anti-corruption strategy,²³ limiting the police authority to use force during unlawful assemblies and arrest people without a warrant, as well as 22 legal amendments to reform the police.²⁴ The Judicial Reform Commission is to submit its final report to Yunus on 5 February, but according to local media a draft report suggests, inter alia, a decentralisation of the High Court by administrative division.²⁵ Moreover, some of the recommendations of the Judicial Reform Commission include a transparent judicial appointment process, financial independence for the judiciary, and introduction of anti-corruption measures.²⁶ The remaining commissions on women's rights, health, labour rights and the media are to submit their reports by mid-February 2025.²⁷

Demographics and migration profile

Bangladesh has a population of over 174 million people,²⁸ and it is one of the most densely populated countries in the world.²⁹ A great majority of the population belongs to the Bengali ethno-linguistic group,³⁰ and most Bengalis are Sunni Muslims.³¹ The most recent census (from 2022) indicated that 99 % of the population were Bengali and that 91 % identified as Muslim.³² The Bangladeshi government recognises 50 ethnic groups³³ but many ethnic minorities identify as ‘indigenous people’³⁴ – which is not a recognised concept.³⁵ Most individuals belonging to an ethnic minority in Bangladesh also belong to a religious minority group.³⁶ The largest religious minorities, as per the census, include Hindus, Buddhists, and Christians.³⁷

Bangladesh is one of the largest countries of origin of migrant workers in the world,³⁸ and an estimated 500 000 people migrate from Bangladesh to work abroad every year.³⁹ The country is, moreover, one of the world’s top remittance recipients,⁴⁰ with migrants bringing in over USD 21 billion per year (about 5 % of GDP⁴¹) in the past years.⁴² Mainly men go abroad to work, although thousands of women also do so,⁴³ and the main areas of destination are Southeast Asia⁴⁴ and Middle Eastern countries,⁴⁵ such as Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and other Gulf states.⁴⁶ Most migrants are low- or unskilled workers,⁴⁷ and make use of agents and private recruitment agencies to arrange foreign employment and travel, which are associated with high costs.⁴⁸ In some countries Bangladeshi migrant workers have moreover faced widespread abuse, particularly in the Middle East.⁴⁹ There are also large diasporas in, inter alia, the US, where Bangladeshis tend to have higher skills and higher income jobs.⁵⁰

In July 2024, the European Commission (EC) launched the Talent Partnership programme with the Government of Bangladesh to ‘boost labour mobility and step-up cooperation on migration.’⁵¹ In 2024, 43 236 Bangladeshi nationals lodged asylum applications in the EU+, which represents

Bangladesh hosts about one million Rohingya refugees from Myanmar living in Cox's Bazar, the largest refugee camp in the world, 'amid mounting instability and growing humanitarian needs'.⁵³ According to a 2024 Human Rights Watch report, Rohingya refugees live in precarious conditions in camps and are subjected to violence by armed groups and gangs.⁵⁴ Bangladesh is not party to the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and lacks specific national legislation governing refugee and asylum affairs.⁵⁵ In September 2024, the head of Bangladesh's interim government Muhammad Yunus called for an expedited resettlement process of Rohingyas from Bangladesh to third countries⁵⁶ as a new wave of Rohingyas fled to Bangladesh⁵⁷ due to escalating violence in Myanmar.⁵⁸ Cases of forced return of Rohingya refugees to Myanmar by the Border Guard Bangladesh were reported by a Myanmar based human rights NGO,⁵⁹ with more than 5 000 cases of refoulement recorded in 2024.⁶⁰

International legal instruments

Bangladesh ratified the following human rights conventions: Convention against Torture and Other Cruel Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (CAT), International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (CCPR), Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance (CED), Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW), International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (CERD), International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (CESCR), International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families (CMW), Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC), Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD).⁶¹ Bangladesh is not party to the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and lacks specific national legislation governing refugee and asylum affairs.⁶² Bangladesh has refrained from signing the Second Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR), which aims to abolish the death penalty.⁶³

The constitution enshrines fundamental rights in chapter three, and guarantees, inter alia, the right to life and personal liberty, freedom of speech and expression, equality before the law and freedom of religion.⁶⁴ Special laws also strive to protect specific rights including the Labour Act (2006),⁶⁵ the Child Marriage Restraint Act (2017),⁶⁶ the Women and Children Repression Prevention Act (2000),⁶⁷ as well as numerous laws addressing specific forms of violence against women, including dowry-related violence, domestic violence, and acid violence.⁶⁸ Article 28 of the constitution outlines that '[t]he State shall not discriminate against any citizen' on the grounds of religion, race, cast, sex or place of birth.⁶⁹ An Anti-Discrimination Bill which prohibits discrimination based on inter alia these grounds was placed in parliament in 2022, but its adoption was still pending as of 22 April 2024.⁷⁰

Bangladesh did not ratify the CED until 30 August 2024⁷¹ and enforced disappearance is not a recognised crime in domestic law.⁷² The former government used law enforcement as a tool to enforce its own agenda, including to undermine the political opposition. In particular the Rapid Action Battalion (RAB) carried out human rights abuses such as extrajudicial killings, enforced disappearances and torture.⁷³ Soon after its installation the interim government 'made commitments to pursue accountability for torture, extrajudicial killings and enforced disappearances, and ensure human rights protection' and also set up a commission of inquiry to investigate enforced disappearances, as reported by Human Rights Watch.⁷⁴ In the period 2009–June 2024, the local human right organisation Odhikar recorded 708 cases of enforced disappearances.⁷⁵ The commission of inquiry's first report however suggests that 3 500 enforced disappearances took place under Hasina's administration.⁷⁶ Abducted dissidents have been held in secret prisons,⁷⁷ while the authorities denied their arrest.⁷⁸ Some of the prominent dissidents were released following the government change.⁷⁹

Security situation

Bangladesh is not engaged in any international or non-international armed conflict.⁸⁰ However, the three districts comprising the Chittagong Hill Tracts (CHT) are affected by protracted political instability and tensions, which have included skirmishes between Bangladeshi security forces and militant rebel groups,⁸¹ and violence between the local indigenous population and Bengali settlers.⁸² This situation stems from a previous conflict, which took place between 1973 and 1997 between the Bangladeshi government and the local Indigenous population, during which Bengali settlers were relocated to the area in order to change the demographic balance.⁸³

Reports of a militant group called the Kuki-Chin National Army (KNA) emerged in mid-2022.⁸⁴ The KNA has carried out attacks against Bangladeshi security forces,⁸⁵ killed military personnel⁸⁶ and also abducted civilians.⁸⁷

As part of the Bangladeshi security forces' response to the attacks of this group, travel restrictions were imposed in parts of the district of Bandarban in 2022; the last restriction was lifted on 22 January 2024.⁸⁸ Violence has however continued with an attack on a bank in Bandarban in April 2024,⁸⁹ and Bangladeshi security forces killing three militants in Bandarban in November 2024.⁹⁰ The skirmishes and crackdowns on civilians by the Bangladeshi security forces, in their response to the security concerns posed by the KNA,⁹¹ have reportedly led to the displacement of 4 000 individuals of the Bawm community – one of the smallest indigenous groups in the CHT. There is reportedly a media blackout in the CHT region as it is an area under military control.⁹²

Incidents of shelling and firing across the border in clashes between the Myanmar army and armed groups also occurred.⁹³ On 5 February 2024, two civilians died as a house in the district of

Bandarban was hit.⁹⁴ Following the change of government there have been reports of local indigenous people clashing with settlers, including mob attacks, leading to deaths and injuries.⁹⁵

In a 2024 Global Terrorism Index published by the Institute for Economics and Peace (IEP), Bangladesh recorded a score deterioration. The country ranked 32nd out of 163 countries (placed in a rank from 1 to 89 places)⁹⁶ in comparison to the 43rd place in the previous edition of the IEP's report.⁹⁷

Several violent Islamist groups reportedly operate in Bangladesh, including regional groups such as al-Qaeda in the Indian Subcontinent (AQIS) and the Islamic State (IS). The former government denied these groups' presence. There are also domestic Islamist groups, with Neo-JMB (an offshoot of the defunct Jamaat-ul-Mujahideen Bangladesh (JMB), affiliated with IS) and Ansar al-Islam (also known as Ansarullah Bangla Team (ABT), affiliated with AQ) being the most prominent. A 'wave of terrorism' took place in the early and mid-2010s when several secular bloggers and LGBTIQ activists were killed, culminating in the Holey Artisan Attack in 2016 when 22 people were killed. The previous government launched intense counter-terrorist operations, and alleged Islamic militants were reportedly tortured and forcibly disappeared. The number of terrorist attacks has declined since. Moreover, the war tribunal set up by the former government⁹⁸ convicted and executed several top-leaders of the largest Islamist party in the country, Jamaat e-Islami, in 2013–2016, for war crimes committed during the 1971 independence war.⁹⁹

Following the change of government in Bangladesh, ABT chief Jashimuddin Rahmani was released from prison, having been convicted for the murder of a secular blogger in 2013.¹⁰⁰ A 'terrorism narrative' has moreover reportedly been used by the former government against individuals and groups in the CHT, inter alia to motivate the continued presence of Bangladeshi security forces in the area.¹⁰¹

Bangladesh's strategic location is reportedly exploited by cross-border criminal networks involved in drug and arms trafficking.¹⁰² While drug-related criminal activities are established on the border between Bangladesh and Myanmar, criminal organisations in India set up clandestine

Human rights situation

During Hasina’s rule, activists and non-governmental organisations (NGOs) reported increasing instances of government scrutiny and bureaucratic restrictions and delays.¹⁰⁴ The media landscape was diverse and growing, but journalists were subjected to self-censorship, intimidation and arbitrary arrests.¹⁰⁵ Arbitrary arrests and surveillance were also imposed on human rights activists and political dissidents.¹⁰⁶ The former government reportedly also made use of enforced disappearance as a tool to suppress dissent and spread fear, and thousands of extrajudicial killings took place.¹⁰⁷ In August 2024, UN OHCHR indicated that a number of those arrested during the protests were subjected to ill-treatment and torture while in police custody.¹⁰⁸ More information on the human rights abuse committed by the former government and state actors is available in section Legal and political situation – overview.

Bangladesh retains the death penalty in national law¹⁰⁹ and enforced it as reported by the local media in 2024.¹¹⁰ Capital punishment applies to 33 offences,¹¹¹ including several non-lethal crimes such as rape, and certain drug-related offences.¹¹² In 2023, over 248 death sentences were issued and 5 executions were enforced, according to Amnesty International.¹¹³ Meanwhile, there were at least 2 400 persons on death row by the end of 2023, according to the same source.¹¹⁴

Mob violence and public lynching of suspected criminals were reported to take place under the former government,¹¹⁵ and continued to break out after the interim government took office.¹¹⁶ Voice of America (VOA) described a ‘wave of mob violence’ as part of nationwide lawlessness following the change of government including the lynching of a man known for struggling with mental health issues accused of theft at, University of Dhaka in September 2024.¹¹⁷ Other sources also reported on mob violence surging in Bangladesh, including 21 deaths from mob lynching in 35 days since early August 2024.¹¹⁸

Corporal punishment is permitted by law also for children if it is ‘done in good faith for a person under twelve years of age, or of unsound mind’ and committed by a guardian ‘or other person having lawful charge of that person’.¹¹⁹ According to UNICEF, ‘9 out of 10 children aged 1-14 years experience violent discipline each month by caregivers’.¹²⁰

Bangladesh’s prison conditions were reported as ‘harsh and at times life threatening due to severe overcrowding, inadequate facilities, and physical abuse’.¹²¹ As of October 2024, the prison population stood at 53 831 inmates,¹²² corresponding to a 125.5 % occupancy level (based on official capacity).¹²³ On 23 December 2024, Bangladesh’s interim government formally requested India for the extradition of Hasina.¹²⁴

Specific profiles

The overview below is not an exhaustive list of profiles that may face specific human rights concerns.

Violence against women remains a prevalent issue in Bangladesh.¹²⁵ At least 50 % of women in Bangladesh have reportedly experienced physical or sexual violence from men in their lives according to local media.¹²⁶ UN Women reported that incidents of sexual harassment at workplaces and schools remain widespread and normalised.¹²⁷ According to Human Rights Watch, ‘women and girls in Bangladesh have little recourse to seek protection or access justice’ for crimes related to sexual and gender-based violence.¹²⁸ A local women’s human rights organisation, Bangladesh Mahila Parishad, indicated a 27 % increase in cases related to violence against women and children in September 2024.¹²⁹ Lack of government’s action to address a series of incidents of rape and sexual violence against children triggered nationwide student-led protests in February 2025, with protesters demanding ‘stricter law enforcement, the establishment of special tribunals for rape cases, increased police presence and enhanced protection for victims’.¹³⁰ In January 2025, the EU and UN Women signed a partnership

Trafficking in human beings is a prevalent issue both for Bangladeshis working abroad, and inside Bangladesh.¹³² Inside Bangladesh, women and girls were trafficked for sexual exploitation,¹³³ but sources also reported on women and children being trafficked overseas for the purposes of domestic servitude and sexual exploitation.¹³⁴ Some of the groups vulnerable to sex trafficking included victims of child marriage and gender-based violence.¹³⁵ There are laws in place to combat trafficking in human beings, specialised tribunals, and Bangladeshi police also cooperate with INTERPOL on trafficking cases. However, attitudes among police officers, corruption, and social stigma preventing victims from reporting were among related challenges to combat trafficking in human beings.¹³⁶ In the 2022 Eurostat data, Bangladesh was ranked as the 4th non-EU country of origin of trafficking victims with a total of 227 registered victims. The same source reported that the majority of Bangladeshis trafficked victims identified in the EU were male.¹³⁷ Bangladeshis were mainly trafficked for labour exploitation with 137 registered victims,¹³⁸ followed by other forms of exploitation, including criminal activities, forced begging and removal of organs.¹³⁹

LGBTIQ persons face discrimination and harassment. According to a 2023 USDOS report, generalised social stigma regarding sexual orientation was common in Bangladesh¹⁴⁰ while same-sex conduct is criminalised by law.¹⁴¹ Penalties range from ten years to life in prison,¹⁴² but the law was not actively enforced by Hasina's government, as reported by USDOS.¹⁴³ Neither the constitution, nor any domestic anti-discrimination framework identifies sexual orientation or gender identity as prohibited discrimination grounds.¹⁴⁴

There is however a third gender in Bangladesh, referred to as hijra, which can be described as an umbrella term for intersex individuals, castrated men and transwomen.¹⁴⁵ Based on a 2013

Bangladesh cabinet directive, the government recognised hijras as a legal third gender category.¹⁴⁶ The precise definition of hijra was not provided¹⁴⁷ and the gender recognition has not been reflected in laws and policies.¹⁴⁸

According to a report on violence against LGBTIQ persons in 2023, by the Bangladeshi advocacy group JusticeMakers Bangladesh in France (JMBF), there were 56 incidents of killings, physical assault, suicides, harassment and extortion, with 219 victims in total. The most frequent target were transpersons, accounting for 61 % of the incidents. Hijras were also targeted in 5 incidents, which victimised 70 individuals. According to the report, police officers were part of 20 incidents, victimising 54 individuals, and criminal activity targeting the LGBTIQ community often went unpunished.¹⁴⁹ Under Hasina's government, organisations and activists advocating for LGBTIQ rights faced legal barriers, limited access to funding, as well as security risks, as reported by CIVICUS.¹⁵⁰ LGBTIQ activists were also targets of violence, threats, and murder.¹⁵¹ The only Pride event has been organised online.¹⁵²

In October 2024, Asian Region of the International Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans and Intersex Association (ILGA Asia) expressed concern over the interim governments' collaboration with far right and Islamist political parties, that have been part of anti-LGBTIQ movements.¹⁵³ According to the news website Erasing 76 Crimes, there has been a 'disturbing rise in violence and discrimination against LGBT educators' under the interim government, as its priority of political reorganisation has created a governance vacuum and allowed for 'extremist elements to gain ground'.¹⁵⁴ In two instances in late 2024, the Islamic University in Kushtia barred educators from teaching due to student protests accusing them of being gay¹⁵⁵ or 'pro-LGBT'.¹⁵⁶ On 23 January 2025, a female student was reportedly expelled from the Islamic University, and her female friend was handed over to police after being accused of being a lesbian couple.¹⁵⁷

Religious and ethnic minorities often overlap, and although many communities identify as indigenous, Bangladesh does not recognise this concept or any particular rights associated with it.¹⁵⁸ According to Freedom House, ethnic and religious groups remained underrepresented in politics and state agencies.¹⁵⁹ According to the EU Election Expert Mission to Bangladesh, indigenous and religious minorities experienced ‘obstacles to full participation in political life, including fear of reprisals and the destruction of their property’.¹⁶⁰ Attacks against the Hindu minority have been reported during the past decades.¹⁶¹ According to a local human rights organisation Ain o Salish Kendra (ASK), violence against Hindu minority has increased significantly from 101 reported cases in 2023¹⁶² to 668 in 2024.¹⁶³ Religious minorities have seen their houses, shops, and places of worship being attacked.¹⁶⁴ Upon the resignation of Hasina in August 2024, the EU Delegation to Bangladesh expressed concern about ‘reports of multiple attacks against places of worship and members of religious, ethnic and other minorities.’¹⁶⁵ Attacks on Hasina’s supporters, including Hindus, Ahmadi Muslims, and ethnic minorities by rioters were reported.¹⁶⁶

According to Human Rights Watch such attacks led to the death of 200 persons.¹⁶⁷ Al Jazeera however reported that these deaths occurred ‘across religions’ and many were Awami League supporters and police officials. Al Jazeera noted that several Indian media reports soon after the change of government exaggerated the number of attacks against Hindu targets inside Bangladesh.¹⁶⁸ Ethnic minorities in the CHT continued to face violence, including mob attacks.¹⁶⁹ More information on the security situation in the CHT and indigenous communities is available under Security situation.

‘Hundreds’ of members and supporters of the Awami League were arrested by the security forces following the fall of Hasina’s government, based on allegations of taking part in the violence during the July-August 2024 protests.¹⁷⁰ International Crisis Group further reported that judges hearing the cases remanded most of them to custody,¹⁷¹ but also noted that there had been ‘no massive outpouring or retribution towards Awami League supporters or others associated to Sheikh Hasina’s government’.¹⁷² Four Awami League leaders had reportedly died in custody in the four-week period until 10 December 2024.¹⁷³ Local media also reported on students beating and handing over Awami League supporters to the police in November 2024, after they were heard chanting slogans supporting Hasina.¹⁷⁴ Journalists seen as being in favour of the former government have also reportedly been arrested.¹⁷⁵

Climate-induced displacement - Due to its geographical location, Bangladesh is one of the most vulnerable countries in the world to the effects of climate change, including seasonal flooding, landslides, and cyclones.¹⁷⁶ Some estimates suggest that disasters triggered the internal displacement of 3.4 million between 2021 and 2023¹⁷⁷, leading to the rapid growth of informal settlements with precarious living conditions as reported by Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) in February 2024.¹⁷⁸

Legal remedies against human rights violations

Bangladesh has a common law system, which incorporates elements of English common law with Islamic law applying to Bangladeshi Muslims in family and inheritance laws, and Hindu personal law applying to Bangladeshi Hindus and Buddhists.¹⁷⁹ The Supreme Court is the highest instance.¹⁸⁰

As law enforcement was used as a tool for political purposes by the former government, which involved human rights abuse and other irregularities (such as demanding bribes, police officers being involved in robbery, drug trade and rape), there is a lack of trust in police.¹⁸¹

The courts moreover face capacity issues due to a large backlog of cases, delays in the disposal of cases, and a lack of digital infrastructure. There is an insufficient number of judges in relation to the case backlog and the population size.¹⁸² There are integrity issues such as ‘endemic’ corruption and demanding bribes.¹⁸³ According to a 2024 survey carried out by Transparency International Bangladesh (TIB), judicial services were identified as the fourth most corrupted sector in Bangladesh, with 62.3 % households that received services from this sector being faced with different forms of corruption.¹⁸⁴ Under Hasina’s rule, reportedly court costs were an obstacle to access justice,¹⁸⁵ including the need to pay bribes.¹⁸⁶ As mentioned, the interim government has formed several commissions that have been tasked with compiling suggestions reforms of
